Creative Solutions Consulting Inc (CSCI) recently opened their new office on East 56th Street in Indianapolis. The new location is ideal for the CSCI team as it is right down the street from their largest client the Defense Finance and Accounting Services (DFAS) as well as allows for a very short commute to downtown State and commercial clients.

To celebrate the opening of their new office, CSCI hosted a Ribbon Cutting Ceremony led by the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce. Due to their phenomenal success during these tough economic conditions Indianapolis Mayor Greg Ballard attended the festivities and congratulated the team on their hard work and great attitude.

“So much of what makes this city a great place to live, work and do business is the pride which small business owners take in their community. We’re very lucky to have an organization such as Creative Solutions take root here in Indianapolis.”

Mayor Greg Ballard also added, “I’m very proud to congratulate Michelle and her crew for this expansion and look forward to watching their continued success and growth in the years to come.”

CSCI, an information technology consulting firm, is recognized as a company that delivers high-quality information system solutions to government and commercial clients- on schedule and within budget. CSCI’s owner, Michele Meyer is always planning ahead and ready for change: “It is crucial for us to position CSCI for the future. We do this by spending the time to get to know our client’s issues and help develop and implement a solution for their long term challenges. CSCI’s vision is to be recognized by all customers as their preferred solutions provider.”

CSCI got its start in 2002 within the Department of Defense’s Defense Finance and Accounting Service (DFAS) and has since expanded to provide services for other federal and state agencies. When asked what impact the economic crisis has had on CSCI, Meyer explained “We are very focused on expanding our breadth of knowledge and expanding our reach to new clients in an effort to build a stronger baseline to ensure that we have continued growth and can provide stability for our associates during unstable times. One impact we have felt is within the recruiting arena, a few years ago finding specialized skills could at times seem impossible whereas today our level of effort is much less.” Meyer has made CSCI one of the fastest growing companies in the Midwest, doubling her business for four consecutive years and now has over 85 associates.

CSCI may be a small business, but they are positioned for big opportunities.
